Martinborough's trademark savouriness comes through in this wine as hints of soy and mushroom, layered over cherry fruit and chocolatey oak. This medium-bodied Pinot Noir is a bit tight and crisp right now but it should be fully open and ready for business mid-2011 and drink well for another 5-6 years after that.

The Te Kairanga 'Runholder' Pinot Noir 2007 shows savoury, forest floor and dried herb complexities, firmly held, but with balance and harmony.
