Bright hue; the expressive bouquet offers black fruits, mocha and dark chocolate, the medium - full-bodied palate adding some cherry notes.

It has to be said that Shingleback, particularly in the affordability stakes, has been in fine form on the red wine front in recent years. No alarms and no surprises – but lots of juicy, tasty flavour. Blackberries and chocolate, coffee grounds and ‘purple’ floral notes. It’s clean, fresh, flavoursome and well balanced.
