Classy, elegant, and delicate, this has been lovingly handled. It is perfumed, has pure sweet fruit, lovely balance and finely woven tannins. A wine every pinot producer should aspire to.

17.5/20

Dark crimson. Sweet, luscious, open frank nose. Lots of sweetness on the front palate – one of the most winning wines.

TYSON STELZER

Aussies Dan and Sarah-Kate Dineen have made their home on a sixteen-year-old Central Otago vineyards on a thirty-degree slope. Fermented with the stalks of the grapes (100% whole bunch) gives layers of five spice and dried herb flavour to the forest floor and blackcurrant fruits of this wine. It has great lift and drive, with tight acidity and pronounced tannins, giving it great promise in the cellar.

ROBERT PARKER'S WINE ADVOCATE

Neil Martin

93/100

The 2007 Pinot Noir is sourced from Wanaka, vines planted in 1994 with 85% whole-bunch pressing. I like the nose, those stems reminding me of an Armand Rousseau, which cannot be bad. Dark fruits, a touch of undergrowth, introspective but well defined. The palate is medium-bodied with fine, grainy tannins, a nice sense of tension. Raspberry leaf, a slight chalkiness on the finish. This is a complex wine that bodes well for future vintages. Drink now-2015.

Outstanding

This wine was made from hundred percent whole bunch pressings. Glorious rich aromas of dark cher
